About the Author ConceptDraw Office Pro software download linkQ: How do you retrieve a session with Nokogiri? I'm using Nokogiri for some XML parsing in an application. The XML is stored in a session. Nokogiri::XML(session[:xml_data]).xpath('//li/@name') The problem is that the xpath doesn't seem to work. I know this because I save an empty list and it returns an empty list. I've read that to retrieve session[:data] as a data_hash you can use the retrieve method with the session_id key like so: session[:data].retrieve(:session_id) However, I'm not sure how to retrieve the XML stored in the session. I'm guessing it will look similar to the following: Nokogiri::XML(session[:data].retrieve(:session_id).to_s) A: You can use to_xml to retrieve your XML into a string. XML("some_xml_string").to_xml This invention relates to an arrangement for detaching a surface from a base member, e.g. an arrangement for detaching a fence panel from a fence post. There are many known designs of arrangements for detaching a fence panel from a fence post, for example, arrangements such as those described in U.S. Pat. No. 1,786,640; U.S. Pat. No.

What's New In?

The latest version ConceptDraw Office Pro is distributed for both Windows and Mac. Though the interface is a bit different, the functionality is almost identical and they are actually capable of working together, because the new version has been distributed by the same developers. Both applications have been redesigned and improved to make them more efficient and usable, and are compatible with the most recent versions of MS Office and CorelDRAW. ConceptDraw Office Pro, developed by Yago Design and ConceptDraw has been designed for use in schools and for businesses and professionals. While development of the program has been in progress for several years, the first commercial version was released on June 5, 2010. The major benefit is the ability to maintain, synchronize and display projects using both CorelDRAW and Microsoft Office tools.
